State Agencies

SUNDAY HUNTING BILL SENT TO GOVERNOR

Legislation that would fully repeal Pennsylvania's Sunday hunting ban today received its final supportive vote and will head to the governor to be signed into law.

House Bill 1431, which passed the state House of Representatives June 11 then passed the state Senate last week, was brought before the House of Representatives again today for a final vote on concurrence. The bill passed by a 142-61 vote.

"Today's vote again demonstrates the broad support for this bill," said Game Commission Executive Director Steve Smith, noting the bill is backed by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and sportsmen's groups across the Commonwealth. "The Game Commission has worked hard on behalf of Pennsylvania's hunters to help get this bill across the finish line, which now is in sight."

While Pennsylvania long has had Sunday hunting opportunities for foxes, coyotes and crows, and Act 107 of 2019 cleared the way for additional hunting on three designated Sundays, Sunday hunting otherwise is prohibited, one of the last remnants of the state's "blue laws." Introduced by Rep. Mandy Steele, D-Allegheny, House Bill 1431 would remove the prohibition, helping to keep hunters engaged and providing the valuable service they do in managing the state's wildlife populations.

If the bill becomes law, the Pennsylvania Game Commission will be authorized to implement additional Sunday hunting opportunities. Further information about when opportunities would be implemented will be released as it becomes available. At present, Sunday hunting remains broadly prohibited, except for the hunting of foxes, coyotes, and crows during open seasons, and on three consecutive Sundays in fall.

PUBLIC ASKED TO REPORT TURKEY SIGHTINGS

The Pennsylvania Game Commission again is seeking input from the public in surveying wild turkeys this summer. The Annual Pennsylvania Wild Turkey Sighting Survey runs July 1 through Aug. 31.

Public participation is important for turkey population management. Survey data allow the agency to determine total wild turkey productivity and compare long-term reproductive success within Pennsylvania and across states, as this is a standard methodology used across the country. Data also are used in the turkey population model to track population trends.

Turkey sightings can be reported through the Game Commission's website at <https://pgcforms.pa.gov/TurkeySightingSurvey>. This is a new URL from last year. The mobile app no longer is available.

Participants are asked to report the number of wild turkeys they see, along with the county, township, wildlife management unit (WMU), date and contact information if agency biologists have any questions. Participants may also simply drop a "pin" on the map for the location data to automatically populate.

Location data are used only for surveys, not for law enforcement, and are not shared. Viewers can also access the raw data and reports from previous years.

"The turkey survey enhances our agency's internal survey, which serves as a long-term index of turkey reproduction and is used in our turkey population model," said Game Commission Turkey Biologist Mary Jo Casalena. "Participants should report all turkeys seen, whether gobblers, hens with broods, hens without broods, or turkeys of unknown sex and age."

Many factors, including spring weather, habitat conditions, previous winter food abundance, predation, and last fall's harvest affect wild turkey productivity.

Statewide reproductive success last summer, which is measured by the number of young turkeys (poults) seen per all hens seen, was 3.2 poults per hen, compared to 2.9 poults per hen in 2023 and 3.1 in 2022 and 2021. At the WMU level in 2024, all 22 indices were above the general threshold of 2.0 poults per hen, which is considered adequate for replacing adult mortality. That was the first year since the national standardized survey began in 2019 that all WMU-level indices were above 2.0; from 2.4 poults per hen in WMU 5D to 4.0 in WMU 2E.

Like many other states this survey includes input from both agency personnel and the public. "Thanks to the large sample size from all corners of the Commonwealth, we have high confidence in the results," Casalena emphasized. "Let's maintain these results in 2025 and even increase participation."

2025-26 HUNTING LICENSES TO GO ON SALE JUNE 23

Hunting and fur taker licenses for Pennsylvania's 2025-26 seasons go on sale Monday, June 23, but there will be plenty of time for hunters to get them without waiting.

As in recent years, antlerless deer licenses will be available when general license sales open. But this year, all Pennsylvania residents are guaranteed to get an antlerless license for the Wildlife Management Unit (WMU) of their choice, so long as they buy it by 7 a.m. on Monday, July 14, the day license sales open to nonresidents.

That is three full weeks for resident hunters to find a convenient time to buy and avoid waiting.

Once sales to nonresidents begin on Monday, July 14 at 8 a.m., antlerless licenses no longer will be guaranteed, and all remaining sales will be on a first come, first serve basis until the allocated number of licenses is exhausted.

The second round of antlerless sales, at which time resident and nonresident hunters can buy a second antlerless license for any WMU where licenses remain, begins on Monday, July 28 at 8 a.m.

The third round begins at 8 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 11. Deer Management Assistance Program (DMAP) permits also go on sale when the third round begins.

During the fourth round of antlerless sales, which begins Monday, Aug. 25 at 8 a.m., hunters can purchase additional antlerless licenses for any WMU where licenses are available.

In most of the state, hunters may hold up to six unfilled licenses at a time. Once reaching that limit, they are not able to buy additional licenses until they use tags by harvesting deer and reporting them. There is a higher limit, however, for WMUs 5C and 5D in southeastern Pennsylvania. There, hunters may hold up to 15 unfilled antlerless licenses at a time. In these highly developed WMUs where there is less public land and limited hunting access, a higher limit helps hunters better seize opportunities to harvest antlerless deer.

All hunters can view the number of remaining antlerless licenses in real time at HuntFish.PA.gov by clicking on the Antlerless Deer tab, then Antlerless Deer Quota. As antlerless license sales progress, tracking sales gives a clear sense of how fast licenses for a given WMU are selling, and how urgent it might be to buy one soon.

But in the first round of antlerless sales, resident hunters know they have three weeks to make their purchase. "Guaranteeing resident hunters an antlerless license for the WMU of their choice provides them flexibility in deciding when to purchase and ensures every resident hunter can get a license without waiting, if so inclined," said Game Commission Executive Director Steve Smith. "Because the number of antlerless licenses allocated in a given WMU is driven by deer-management objectives, and often fluctuates from one year to the next, there is no guaranteeing a statewide guarantee will continue. But for this year, it is certain to further alleviate the first-round rush and create additional convenience.

The new license year begins July 1, at which time 2024-25 hunting and fur taker licenses, as well as mentored permits and other permits and privileges, will expire and new licenses will be needed before heading afield.

Licenses may be purchased online at HuntFish.PA, or in person from any license-issuing agent, locations for which are mapped on HuntFish.PA. Paper licenses and harvest tags are mailed when bought online. General hunting licenses cost $20.97 for resident adults and $101.97 for non-resident adults. Antlerless deer licenses cost $6.97 for residents and $26.97 for nonresidents. A full list of prices can be found on HuntFish.PA by clicking on License Catalog under the Hunting tab.

Know your CID number

To protect personal information, HuntFish.PA customers can no longer use Social Security numbers to access their customer accounts.

Instead, returning customers must use either their driver's license number, passport card number or the nine-digit Customer Identification (CID) number that appears on their license or permits.

The Game Commission encourages hunters to memorize their CID numbers, write them down, or have an old license on hand when buying a new one. Doing so will help ensure a smooth and speedy transaction.

Customers who have not purchased or renewed a license through HuntFish.PA and need to create a new customer account still will need to provide their Social Security number when doing so. This is a one-time-only requirement.

DMAP permits and extended seasons

Deer Management Assistance Program (DMAP) permits allow hunters to hunt and harvest antlerless deer, during established deer seasons, on the specific property for which the permit is issued.

Landowners participating in DMAP can make permits available to hunters directly through licensing-issuing agents or HuntFish.PA, or they can choose to issue coupons hunters then can redeem for permits.

For each property where landowners issue coupons, hunters may purchase up to four DMAP permits, so long as permits remain available. For all other DMAP properties, the limit is two.

There will be additional opportunities for hunters on DMAP properties this year. From Dec. 26, 2025, through Jan. 24, 2026, the antlerless-only extended firearms season will be open on all DMAP properties, with each participant needing a DMAP permit for that property in addition to their general license.

Hunters participating in the extended firearms season must follow the same fluorescent orange regulations that apply in the regular firearms deer season – 250 square inches of fluorescent orange on the head, chest and back combined, visible from 360 degrees.

DMAP permit sales open Aug. 11 at 8 a.m. DMAP permits cost $10.97 for residents and $35.97 for nonresidents.

Renewing senior tags

While Pennsylvania residents ages 65 or older may purchase a lifetime hunting or fur taker license – or a lifetime combination license that includes hunting, fur taking and other privileges – lifetime license holders still must obtain new antlered deer and turkey harvest tags each license year, as well as new antlerless deer licenses, bear licenses, elk license applications, DMAP permits and more.

All senior lifetime hunting license and combination license holders who purchased their lifetime license prior to May 13, 2017, are exempt from needing a pheasant permit to hunt or harvest pheasants. “Pheasant Eligible” is printed on the bottom panel of the license for hunters who do not have to purchase a pheasant permit.

Hunters need to provide proof of residency, usually with a valid Pennsylvania driver’s license, when renewing lifetime licenses.

Conservation District - Lindsey Shepler, Watershed Specialist / Environmental Educator

- BCCD put on 8 education events in the month of June. Two of those were for conservation camp. Campers got to learn about skull identification, grasslands, wetlands, pollinators, and conduct a macro invertebrate stream study to see how sampling macro invertebrates can tell us a lot about the health and quality of a stream without having to run expensive laboratory testing.

- BCCD applied for 4 growing greener grant projects this year, 2 were streambank stabilization projects along Raccoon Creek, one was a streambank stabilization project on Brush Creek in Brush Creek Park, and one was for an agricultural BMP on a farm in Darlington township. We will not know if we were awarded any of these grants until January 2026.
- We are beginning to look ahead to the county fairs in August, we will have displays set up at both the Hookstown fair and Big Knob fair.
- We finished hosting the PA Master Naturalist course we were coordinating partners on, trainees are now looking for volunteer hours and continuing education credits, if your organization is in need of volunteers for any events, please let Lindsey Shepler (lindsey.shepler@bccdpa.us) know and she will send your information to those individuals to try and recruit some volunteers.

Lake Erie Fishing

The walleye season seems to be off at a good start. Anglers recently are reporting limits within 1-2 hours in 55 to 65 FOW, while some fish seem to be suspended 25 ft due to water temperatures. For the bay and shore anglers, largemouth continue to be caught on soft plastics and jigs. Reference link below for current fishing reports.

The Ohio River and Beaver River have been productive as water temperatures rise. Anglers are targeting various species like walleye, catfish, and bass. Still might have some luck with the stripers.
